1. Describe potential improvements in psychosocial cancer research and/or practice through enhancing networks and collaborations between researchers, practitioners and advocacy groups.
2. Translate research findings into evidence-based clinical and educational programs in all areas of psychosocial oncology (i.e., needs assessment, screening, patient navigation, survivorship care plans and their implementation).
3. Identify the range of emotional, cognitive, physical, social and spiritual needs of cancer survivors and members of their social networks.
4. Increase awareness among oncology professionals in providing psychosocial assessment and referral.
5. Identify groups that are at risk for receiving less than optimal medical care and develop strategies to reach out to members of these groups.
6. Describe the quality indicators for psychosocial care and the challenges of translating evidence-based programming into clinical practice.
7. Demonstrate successful implementation of research and/or practice programs to the specific needs of their institution, even in the face of limited resources.
8. Identify common ethical dilemmas encountered in psychosocial oncology and tools to address these.

APOS members for 2010 will receive reduced registration fees for the APOS 7th Annual Conference. APOS is the only multidisciplinary professional society in the United States dedicated to advancing the practice and science of psychosocial oncology. If you would like to take advantage of the members-only discount, please renew your membership or complete a membership application and submit payment for dues with your Conference Registration Form.

Preconference Workshops

Pre- and postconference workshops will be offered in conjunction with the APOS 7th Annual Conference.

Thursday, 18 February 2010, Morning Workshops

8:00am - 12:00pm (1/2 hour networking break)

1. Using Qualitative Methods in Psychosocial Oncology Research

Presenters: Elyse R. Park PhD, MPH¹, Vani Simmons, PhD²

Target Audience: Clinicians, Clinical Researchers

Learning Level: Beginner/Intermediate

This workshop will take participants through steps of qualitative research, from transforming a clinical observation into a qualitative research pursuit to publishing qualitative findings. Presenters will provide an in-depth overview of the features of and uses for qualitative research, selecting the appropriate qualitative method, and strengths and limitations of qualitative research, as well as mixed methods — combining qualitative and quantitative research. The workshop will review qualitative methodology including how to formulate a research question, develop an interview tool, determine a sampling framework, establish reliability and validity, and conduct data analysis. Participants will have opportunities to present their research ideas, develop qualitative interview questions and develop a design framework.

2. Teaching Men and Women How To Get the Best Out of Each Other in Times of Stress

Presenters: Matthew Loscalzo MSW, Karen Clark MS, City of Hope National Medical Center, Duarte, CA

Target Audience: Researchers, Clinicians, Advocates, Administrators, Educators

Learning Level: Beginner/Intermediate/Expert

Research has clearly demonstrated that the intellectual differences between women and men are very small compared to their many similarities. But when it comes to coping with cancer, frequently small differences have a big impact. This workshop will offer a new paradigm for the recruitment and engagement of men and women focused on a strengths-based problem-solving approach. Workshop participants will participate in interactive exercises and discussion of this new area of growth for psychosocial oncology.

Preconference Workshops

3. What Do I Do NOW? Enhancing Advocacy Skills Along the Survivorship Continuum

Target Audience: Clinicians, Advocates

Learning Level: Beginner/Intermediate/Expert

This workshop will explore advocacy tools that enable people affected by cancer to take a more active role in their care from diagnosis through the end of life. Presenters will discuss the attributes and the importance of shared decision-making and how it relates to survivorship care planning. Participants will learn how to implement several tools to improve patient-clinician communication and how to incorporate self-advocacy skills training into a variety of settings. End-of-life issues will also be discussed, as well as the appropriate times and ways to address these issues.

4. Intervention Updates and Research Lessons Learned: Measurement, Recruitment Issues and Community Participation in Working with Latinas, Asian American and Native American Populations

Presenters: Carolyn Messner, DSW, MSW, LCSW-R, BCD¹, Anna Napoles, PhD, MPH², Wesley Petersen, PhD, MEd³, Kimlin Tam Ashing-Giwa, PhD⁴

Learning Level: Intermediate

Presenters will identify key steps in adapting interventions for minority populations, including Latinas, Asian American and Native American populations; describe the role of formative qualitative data in adaptation of interventions; identify key cultural themes in adapting psychosocial interventions; and delineate critical strategies for involving communities in the adaptation and research process. Participants will engage in a dynamic, interactive dialogue in which they will be invited to ask questions and share some of their research and intervention challenges, including recruitment and community partnership experiences and lessons learned.

Preconference Workshops

Thursday 18 February 2010, Afternoon Workshops

1:00pm - 5:00pm (1/2 hour networking break)

5. Psychosocial Oncology Research Methods: Introduction to Cohort Studies

Presenters: William Pirl MD, MPH¹, Christopher Recklitis PhD, MPH², Elyse R. Park PhD, MPH¹
¹Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, MA; ²Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Boston, MA

Target Audience: Researchers, Clinicians

Learning Level: Beginner

Cohort studies, in which patients who have a certain condition or treatment are followed over time and compare to an unaffected group, present a great opportunity for oncology clinicians to do research given their potential integration into clinical services and their relatively low cost. This workshop provides an introduction to the methodology of prospective and retrospective cohort studies. It is broken into sections that cover the basic design and analysis of cohort studies and has an interactive discussion in which workshop attendees are encouraged to present ideas for cohort studies that they might be able to conduct on their own.

6. Cancer and Cognitive Impairment: Management of Cognitive Impairment in Adults with Cancer

Presenters: Lynne S. Padgett PhD¹, Lynne Wagner PhD², Robert J. Ferguson PhD³
¹Kaiser Permanente, Atlanta, GA; ²Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center, Chicago, IL; ³Eastern Maine Medical Center, Bangor, ME

Target Audience: Researchers, Clinicians, Advocates

Learning Level: Beginner/Intermediate/Expert

This workshop will review the research of cognitive impairments in adult cancer patients, including design, measurement, and analysis. Multiple challenges will be presented, including assessment of cognitive functioning and the relationship between perceived impairment and neuropsychological results. In addition, the biologic role of cancer, as well as cancer treatment, impact on cognitive functioning will be considered. The design of the Memory and Attention Adaptation Training (MAAT) model, results of MAAT intervention research, future directions and clinical cases will also be discussed. Design of clinical interventions drawing from current research with adults, as well as interventions with children and adolescents, will be reviewed. Presenters will discuss disability claims and present a group, single-visit psychoeducational community program.

Preconference Workshops

7. Psychosocial Issues for Adolescent and Young Adult Cancer Patients: Research and Clinical Practice

Target Audience: Researchers, Clinicians

Learning Level: Beginner/Intermediate

Integrating research and clinical perspectives, this workshop will illuminate the unique psychosocial issues for adolescent and young adult (AYA) cancer patients. The goals of this workshop are to (a) identify the unique burden of cancer, (b) discuss theoretical and empirical literature and its implications for conducting age- and culturally-appropriate clinical practice and research; and (c) provide a forum for discussion of cases and innovative approaches to clinical practice and peer support.

8. Building Integrated Psychosocial Programs of Excellence: Creating and Growing Value-Based Programs

Presenters: Matthew Loscalzo MSW¹, Karen Clark MS¹, Barry D. Bultz PhD, R. Psych²

¹City of Hope National Medical Center, Duarte, CA; ²Tom Baker Cancer Centre, and Faculty of Medicine, University of Calgary, Calgary, Canada

Target Audience: Researchers, Clinicians, Advocates, Administrators, Educators

Learning Level: Beginner/Intermediate/Expert

This highly interactive workshop is organized to clearly demonstrate and to have the participants experience, first-hand, a staff leadership model that focuses on creating leadership opportunities for all members of the health care team in creating patient-centered programs. Participants will break into small groups to develop a comprehensive list of potential barriers related to their individual situations. The groups will then work together to develop a variety of creative strategies to identify and maximize resources unique to their settings. The participants will also be given the opportunity to create a leadership support network as part of the workshop.

Postconference Workshops

Sunday 21 February 2010

8:00am - 11:00am (continental breakfast at 7:30am)

9. Sexuality Changes Across the Cancer Continuum of Care

Presenters: Mary K. Hughes, MS, RN, CNS, CT¹; Les Gallo-Silver ACSW, LCSW-R²

Target Audience: Clinicians

Learning Level: Intermediate/Expert

This workshop will describe sexuality issues that emerge with diagnosis and continue through treatment, post-treatment and at the end of life. Presenters will describe the uniqueness of each phase along the cancer continuum and address acute and chronic sexuality changes. Options for treatment, rehabilitation and adaptation will be explored. Participants will learn how to do a basic sexual assessment during a role play exercise and have an opportunity to present case studies and problem solve as a group.

10. Navigating Patients Through the Legal and Financial Maze of a Cancer Diagnosis

Presenters: Joanna L. Fawzy Morales Esq¹, Ashley Varner, MSW, MBA²

Target Audience: Researchers, Clinicians, Advocates

Learning Level: Beginner/Intermediate

This workshop will provide detailed information on clinical screening and assessment of cancer patients with regard to health insurance and financial status, as well as substantive information about cancer-related legal issues. Presenters will focus on providing healthcare professionals with tools to identify the presence of cancer-related legal issues for their patients and to offer referral to appropriate legal resources. The need for cancer-related legal training for healthcare professionals is based on the ever-increasing number of cancer survivors, the higher turnover of healthcare professionals in the oncology community, and a continually changing legal landscape.

Contribute an Attendee Gift

You can also contribute to the APOS 6th Annual Conference by providing an attendee gift for the conference bags. Possible gifts include badge holders, stress balls, pens and pads, etc. You also may provide informational resources (flyers, books, pamphlets) for the resource table, located next to the registration desk. Visit www.apos-society.org/apos2010/supporters.asp for information.

Registration Policies

Registration Policy: Register before 25 January 2010 to take advantage of reduced registration fees! Annual Conference registration includes the Opening Reception, plenary and concurrent sessions, abstract book, program book, and scheduled breakfasts, lunches and breaks as outlined in the program.

Refund Policy: Refund requests must be made in writing to APOS Headquarters on or prior to 25 January 2010. A 75% refund of the Annual Conference and workshop(s) registration fees will be given for cancellations received on or prior to 25 January 2010. No refunds will be made after 25 January 2010. No refunds will be made to individuals who attend a portion of the meeting. No refunds will be made for cancellations due to inclement weather. APOS reserves the right to substitute faculty, or cancel or reschedule sessions (because of low enrollment or other circumstances). If APOS must cancel the conference in its entirety, APOS may refund the appropriate registration fees to all conference registrants; no refunds will be made for travel expenses related to the conference.

Refunds in case of Emergency: If you are unable to attend the workshop(s) or the Conference based on serious illness or death (of self or a family member), a partial refund (amount paid minus a $55 processing charge) may be granted. Emergency refund requests must be made in writing to APOS Headquarters at the following address. The Program Chair reviews all requests to ensure compliance with policy.

Substitution Policy: If you are unable to attend workshops or the Conference, you are welcome to send a colleague in your place. There is no fee to make this change up to 25 January 2010. Substitutions after 25 January 2010 will incur a $55.00 processing fee.

Returned Check Policy: Remittance must be made in U.S. Dollars. A $25.00 surcharge may be assessed to cover any collection fees.

Important Payment Note: The registration form must be accompanied by your credit card information or check in full payment of all applicable fees. All non-U.S. registrants will be charged the U.S. Dollar equivalent at the time the charge is processed, unless otherwise indicated. To qualify for early registration rates, complete registration must be submitted online, faxed or postmarked no later than 25 January 2010.

Exhibitors: Exhibitors are subject to the same refund and substitution policies above. However, exhibitors do not qualify for refunds in case of emergency with the belief that an exhibiting organization can send another representative if the original representative is unable to attend.
